SINN FEIN NOW FORESEES PEACE

Leaders Believed To Be Ready To Give Up Republic Idea If They Can Get Other Concessions—Assert They Are United, Whatever Happens.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dublin, Sept. 9.—Ireland believes that peace now lies ahead. Sinn Fein leaders today expressed satisfaction over the action of the British cabinet in withdrawing all the previous limitations for a peace conference and making the single condition that Ireland remain within the empire. There are indications that the Sinn Fein leaders will not press their demand for a Republic. Little doubt is felt that Eamon de Valera will accept the invitation to a peace parley at Inverness on September 20 and the Republicans believe that he can now do so without compromising his position.

The opinion exists in some quarters, however, that Premier Lloyd-George may be making a play to split the Irish ranks upon the acceptance of dominion status for Ireland. Certain leaders said they believed that the English premier was gambling upon causing a break away by the Irish Republican army.

"But we are so disciplined that there is no fear of this," said one leader to the International News Service. "We are united and all stand behind de Valera. You can tell the American people that we are firm and we ask our friends in the United States to keep a united front. We shall not let England break us. All is going to come out all right. Many times the Irish cause has been ruined by a break, but this time no matter what attitude de Valera takes he will have the support of us all."

ALONG SAMARA'S ROADS OF MISERY

By Bessie Beatty.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Samara, Russia, Sept. 8.—A block from the surging mass of traders that fill the market place in this heart of Russia's death district, scene of grotesque contrasts, a woman sat by the roadside, huddled over a bit of sacking. She turned her face to me, she was dumb with misery. She tried to speak but her voice was so faint I couldn't hear her.

I stooped down and pulled back the sacking. A boy of four, the last of her family, lay there. He was dying slowly. Hunger does not hurry. I gave her bread. She laid it aside. It was too late for bread. She asked me for something to bury him in.

A few yards away sat a child of ten. In her arms she held a thing that had long since ceased to look like a baby. Two thin claws clutched monkey-like at a cranberry. Life was fighting there, avaricious, tenacious. "He fights for milk and I have none," the child said.

I gave the baby some bread and milk from a bottle I was taking back to a friend on the boat. The baby seized it greedily. I urged the little girl to eat too. She must have ached with hunger, but she would not eat, saying the baby had become her one passion.

Beyond was a boy of twelve, trying to comfort another baby whose mother was in the hospital. The child was a pitable picture of hunger. A peasant woman, with seven of her own to feed, saw him. She snatched up the baby, sat down at the roadside, tore open her dress, nursed the child and went her way.

In Saratov I heard two women talking in that terrible dead monotone of the hungry, which is more tragic than sobs.

"It's all the same where we go," one said.

"Where ever we go we'll die. I want to go back to the farm and die with the others," her companion answered.

There was a little girl with them, too weak to speak.

"I had a boy, too, yesterday," said the mother. "He died last night."

Before we arrived thousands of peasants had left their villages, but the receipt of seed from the government stopped the exodus.

LONDON LIKES NEW IRISH NOTE

Sinn Fein Expected To Assent To New Conference By Monday—One London Tory Paper Scores Government For "Treason."

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 9.—Optimism was the chief note of the press comment today upon the British cabinet's note to the Sinn Fein suggesting a free and untrammelled peace conference in Scotland to open September 20.

The Tory newspaper Morning Post was the only exception. This newspaper, which has been consistently attacking the Irish policy of the government, made a vigorous assault upon the cabinet's conciliatory invitation to the Sinn Fein, calling it "treason, treachery and disgraceful."

The English note is now under consideration by the Sinn Fein leaders at Dublin and it is believed that a reply will have been sent to Premier Lloyd-George by Monday.

The Pall Mall Gazette, a Lloyd-George organ, predicts tragedy, anarchy and violent warfare if the new negotiations collapse.

MANDATE NOTE STRONG IN TONE

American Communication Received In Europe Reasserts That League Mandates Cannot Exclude United States From Voice In Disposition Of Former German Colonies Nor Deprive Her Of Trade Rights.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Geneva, Sept. 9.—The United States, in its latest mandate note to the Allied powers, insists that America shall have the same rights in mandatory territories as members of the League of Nations, it was learned here today.

The text of the American note has been received by the delegates of the Allied powers attending the League of Nations assembly meetings from the various Allied foreign offices.

It is understood that the American note raises the following points:

1. America reasserts that the Allies must consult her before disposing of the former German colonies.

2. America insists that she have the same trade rights in mandate territories as members of the League of Nations.

3. No mandate shall be modified without the consent of the United States.

4. The American note meets the Allied argument that the United States did not war on Turkey and consequently has no voice in the disposition of Turkish colonies by asserting that Turkey would not have been defeated if the United States had not fought Germany.

5. The American note suggests that capitulations be maintained in Syria, Palestine and Mesopotamia until effective governments can be established in those countries.

It is learned that all prospects for any real progress on disarmament at this session have been severely retarded by the flat refusal of England and France to "interchange full and frank information" regarding armaments though pledged to do so in Article Eight of the League of Nations covenant.

Dr. Nansen, head of the international relief work of Russia, made a two hour speech offering a resolution to refer the question of relief to a committee of the assembly which would make an appeal to all governments to issue credits. Dr. Nansen before coming to Geneva negotiated an agreement with the Moscow soviet in which the latter requested an international loan of $50,000,000 to aid famine and cholera sufferers. The British have already refused to participate in any such international loan asserting that Russia is bankrupt and could not repay and also because the soviet did not give guarantees that were satisfactory to England that the food purchased with the money would not be diverted to the Red army.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES.

Ruth Gets 53rd Homer On Same Day As Last Year.

Efforts of the Braves to cinch a niche in the first division were half way rewarded for a half-way effort yesterday. Boston managed to break even in a double bill with the tail ending Phillies.

The Yanks lost to Philadelphia's other cellarite crowd but still hold a firm grip on the league leadership.

Meanwhile the 1920 champion Indians missed a chance to edge up on the Yanks when they lost to the Tigers.

Turn about was fair play for Chicago fans, the Cubs winning from the Reds while the White Sox lost to St. Louis.

Babiano Ruth made history repeat itself yesterday when he clouted his 53rd home run off Rommel, the same pitcher he hit for his 53rd homer on the same date a year ago.

HAS WHOLE BAND ARRESTED

Athens All Worked Up When E. E. Brady Has 12 Glasco Musicians Brought To Court After They Have Beaten Him Up Following Auto Accident.

The village of Athens teemed with excitement Wednesday evening when twelve members of the Italian band of Glasco were brought to Athens by State Trooper Sager to answer charges preferred against them by E. E. Brady, the well known Athens laundry man.

The case is the result of an automobile accident following the firemen's convention at Coxsackie on Labor Day. It seems that night the members of the band were on their way home in a motor-bus and Mr. Brady and his son were going toward Athens in a light laundry truck.

Mr. Brady alleges that as he succeeded in passing the bus carrying the bandmen, the latter vehicle went off the roadway into a field. Mr. Brady alleges that he stopped to see if any injuries had been suffered and that as he did the twelve bandmen "piled on" him and there was quite a mix-up.

Mr. Brady caused the warrants to be sworn out for the arrest of the dozen musicians and Wednesday Trooper Sager went to Glasco. About 9 o'clock he brought the dozen men with him to Athens where they were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Hitchcock. Mr. Brady was represented by O. Gates Porter as attorney. John C. Welsh of Catskill looked after the interests of the bandmen.

A crowd of several hundred swarmed about the court room, many coming from Glasco and Catskill, when the case was called. No testimony was taken Wednesday evening and the hearing as adjourned until 7 o'clock this evening.

The matter has caused excitement in Athens and the proceedings are being followed with much interest by all the residents.

EXPERTS PREDICT INCREASE IN JOBS

Secretary Davis Explains That Unemployment Situation Is Not So Bad as it Seems Since Thousands Who Worked During Period of Tempting Wages Never Worked For Gain, Before or Since.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 9.—Officials today took a more optimistic view of the unemployment situation. Indications of a better trend industrially, particularly in agriculture, are multiplying.

Secretary Hoover said he was very hopeful that the stimulation in cotton and wheat will extend to other lines that have been stagnant since the price declines started business to sagging.

Others in touch with the fiscal and commercial outlook were equally sanguine that the corner has been turned. The permanency of these improvements in business in the lines described, it was said, is bound to cut down to some extent some of the present idleness.

Plans went ahead speedily today for a conference on unemployment here. Secretary Hoover today laid the tentative program for the conference before the president and his cabinet.

There are approximately 4,000,000 bread winners out of employment, according to calculations made today from the latest government reports on unemployment.

"In consideration of these figures certain conditions must be kept in mind," said Secretary of Labor Davis.

"First, they refer to the change in number of persons employed between the peak of operations in 1920 and the present time, ignoring whatever unemployment there may have been in the spring of 1920; second, that the employment was far above normal in the spring of 1920, industries bid for workers; wives, daughters and boys who were not accustomed to work for wages took up gainful work through economic necessity or because of the tempting wages offered. Therefore the present recession in employment may mean not entirely unemployment for regular workers, but in addition a return of many persons from gainful work back to non-gainful home work or school."

It is estimated that these people who were "not accustomed to work for wages" numbered about 1,000,000 while the August report of the United States employment service showed that 1,428 firms usually employing more than 500 workers, had 16,269 more employes on their payrolls on August 31 than they carried on July 31."

MUST GO TO PART TIME SCHOOL

Children Coming Under Law Will Save Trouble By Registering—Employers Required To Cooperate.

There seems to be considerable players and pupils compeled to attend part time school on the part of employers and pupils compelled to attend such school. During the part time school year the law requires all employed boys and girls 14 and 15 years old to attend such school at least four hours per week while the schools are open.

Employers are required by law to cooperate with the school officials in enforcing the attendance of such children in their employ. Severe penalties are provided for failure to do so.

All employed children 14 and 15 years of age will save themselves and their parents trouble by registering on or before Tuesday noon, Sept. 13, if they have not already done so. Boys will register in the high school machine shop and girls at School No. 2 on West Chestnut street, ground floor, northwest corner of building.

GERMAN MARK IS WORTHLESS

Wall Street Agrees That as Long as She Keeps Printing Them and Flooding World They Will Be of No More Value Than Bolshevist Money.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 9.—The German mark today is intrinsically worthless according to Wall street bankers, who were interviewed by the International News Service.

They agreed the latest sensational drop in the mark to 1 cent, merely reflects the fundamental condition of inflated currency in Germany and that there can be no real improvement in German exchange until Germany ceases to finance herself by issues of paper marks.

The opinion was expressed that the mark will never go back to the pre-war parity of .238 but will some day be retired at a much smaller figure.

"As long as the printing presses run, marks will be worth no more than Russian roubles," said Jules S. Bache, head of the Stock Exchange firm of J. S. Bache & Company. "The Germans haven't stopped the presses and the allies haven't had the sand to make them stop. Germany is simply flooding the world with marks so that the entire world will have a stake in her welfare."

Berhard A. Duis, vice president of the National City Bank, was of the same opinion.

The Germans themselves are beginning to lose faith in their own money, according to Edgard Molitor, of the American Foreign Banking Corporation.

The demand for marks is by no means confined to speculators, according to A. B. Johnson, vice president of the American Express Company. "The daily demand for marks to settle actual trade balances is between fifty and seventy million a day," he said. "But the crux of the matter is the flooding of the world by Germany with her fiat money."

STORM BOOZE SHIP; 1 DEAD

Seven Sailors Wounded and Prohibition Officer Dead After Early Morning Raid on Greek Ship in N. Y. Harbor In Which Cargo of Cocaine and Liquor is Seized—Agent Suicides Afterward.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 9.—Two Greek sailors found wounded and moaning in their bunks aboard the Greek steamer King Alexander today brought the total wounded when a boarding party of prohibition agents stormed the ship early in the morning to seven, one probably fatally. In addition a body, believed to be that of one of the prohibition raiding party, was found floating in the harbor near the scene of the fight.

Prohibition Officer Frank J. Fitzpatrick, following the raid, shot and killed himself in the wash room of a ferry house on the shore, near the ship's moorage, police reported. According to their story, other prohibition agents were standing near Fitzpatrick when he shot himself. It is not known whether he shot any of the crew who were wounded in the fight.

The seaman who was probably fatally wounded was Anthony Patternis, shot in the abdomen.

Shortly after noon, United States Marshal James M. Power, with 30 deputy marshals and 25 policemen, boarded the King Alexander and arrested every member of the crew, said to number close to 300.

The men were formed into lines aboard the vessel to be taken to the federal building in Brooklyn.

The discovery of the rum and drug smuggle interrupts the schedule of the ship, which was to have sailed for Greece next Wednesday.

Officer Fitzpatrick was later identified as the head of the narcotic squad rather than federal enforcement agent.

Seizure of the vessel was considered by United States Attorney Collins of Brooklyn.

As a result of this ship storming which comes close upon the heels of the capture by prohibition agents of nearly a million dollars' worth of high grade whiskeys on the water front, the local prohibition officers have $125,000 worth of cocaine and liquor seized aboard the ship.

All of the wounded men are now in hospitals, closely guarded. In addition, eight unwounded sailors, who participated in the pistol battle aboard the ship which took place just before dawn, are held for violation of the Volstead act.

The capture of the ship was made only after a bitter battle between the raiders and the crew. An arrangement had been made by two prohibition agents and the sailors, by which a portion of the drugs and whiskey were to be bought by the agents for $14,000.

Early this morning, in a boat dimly lighted by a lantern, the two agents went out to the moorage of the King Alexander, climbed up the Jacob's ladder and began to pay the crew for the contraband as agreed.

Close behind the boat as it approached the steamer, came a launch filled with fifteen prohibition officers, heavily armed. Hardly had the two aboard begun to hand over their money when a watch aboard the King Alexander espied the approaching officers.

Immediately an attack was made upon the two men upon the ship, while efforts to rase the ladder, to prevent the storming party from climbing the steep side of the vessel proved just too late. Armed with heavy irons and firearms, the crew fought hard to repel the invaders. From the stern of the ship came flashes of fire where pistols were [illegible] which disclosed the presence of members of the storming party.

In reply, the prohibition agents drew their own guns and their fire caused the defenders who were in the open to seek cover. Agents Reager and Oyler the first two aboard, in the darkness, made their way to cover, firing whenever they got a chance at the members of the crew.

Fearing for their lives, members of the crew whose ability with shooting irons was at once seen to be inferior, began to seek escape from the ship. A number of splashes indicated that some of the crew had slipped through port holes into the water and had made their way into darkness and safety.

A lull in the firing caused prohibition Chief Ernest Langley to investigate. Dawn coming on disclosed five of the Greek crew, wounded in the fight, strewn about the deck.

Search of the ship from end to end followed and the whiskey and drugs were discovered and confiscated. Eight of the crew who participated in the battle are held for violation of the Volstead act while about twenty others, who claim to have nothing to do with either the booze, drugs or the fighting, are held for investigation.

The storming of the ship is one of a series of sensational raids by the new prohibition enforcement administration which a few days ago served notice that it considered New York the center of the bootleg traffic of the country and that it would proceed with all dispatch to "clean up" the city.

About Your Battery

Batteries will wear out—nobody can stop that, but in a good many cases the embarrassment would be less if the owner knew his battery had "one foot in the grave," and was apt to die any time. When anything like that happens we feel that we have failed in our effort to get your ear and tell you the facts—the condition of your battery.

One of our most important duties is to tell you—whether you own a Willard Threaded Rubber Battery or not—just how that battery stacks up.

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

LOW SQUARE HEEL

New Note in Stylish Footwear for the Street.

Young Girls Are Wearing This Model for Dancing, in Satin to Match Gowns.

A new note in footwear is a low square leather heel for street wear, which big city shops report as a "best seller." This fashion is said to be inspired by the low-heeled slippers worn in a successful musical comedy. The young girls are wearing the low-heeled model for dancing, in satin to match their gowns; a touch of the Victorian, in harmony with wider and ruffled skirts.

The favorite for street wear seems to be this low-heeled model in patent leather. The fringed tongue, which originally was used only on brogues, has been adopted for afternoon and evening wear. White kid oxfords with French heels are shown with the fringed tongue, and the latest adaptation is seen in a black satin slipper with a solid black satin piece, the ends of which are fringed with cut steel beads. These are items that are well to remember when one is shopping for one's midsummer and fall footwear.

There has been a new feature in the decoration of hand bags, in the use of the seed bead in the making of the solid beaded bag. But used with this is the large nailhead bead.

From abroad come interesting ideas of the exploitation of the black and white vogue in the neckwear field for the coming season. Organdie is still the chief fabric medium, and touches of black are given by means of black organdie appliques usually in straight narrow bands as often as edging, and by chainstitch embroidery in black.

Gauntlets continue to be in the glove field, these being shown in plain styles as well as in a wide range of fancies.

Stiff cuff gauntlets being shown by some of the importers do not enjoy the same popularity as the soft cuff variety.

WOOL JERSEY 'JUMPER DRESS'

Quite the thing today is the "jumper dress" of wool jersey. For comfort and style the mode seems most fitting. Purple and white are prominent colors used.

HAVE ONE EVER-READY FROCK

Crepe de Chine or Other Silk, Preferably Dark, Affords Gown When Needed in Haste.

In your wardrobe for summer there should always be an attractive frock of crepe de chine or other silk, preferably of dark color—something that you can be sure of and can fall back on when the organdies have all become mussed and lighter clothes have become soiled. You always think that it will be so easy to press your own frocks with a little iron. But in your busy days you do not take time and you may be caught with nothing to wear unless you take some substantial, serviceable frock that looks well anyway.

An evening frock of black or brown lace or net is also a good emergency addition to your summer wardrobe. This is not the type of evening frock you would select for summer evenings, but it is sure to look presentable and needs only a little attention to make it look fresh. Often all that it needs is by way of pressing after it has been in your trunk is to be hung up in a closet to let the wrinkles hang out.

Care of Hair.

Between the regular shampoos, the hair should be well shaken and thoroughly ventilated, in the sunshine if possible, to invigorate the roots and make it more fluffy. Shake it loose and then wipe down the hair shafts with a soft, clean towel (not one that has a tendency to shed lint). Then brush thoroughly, finishing with a piece of soft velvet or plush.

Her System.

OUR "SOVEREIGN" STATES.

In his published correspondence with DeValera, Lloyd-George reminds the Irish leader that the States of the American Union, "sovereign though they be," enjoy "no such range of rights" as would belong to Ireland under the offered "dominion status" similar to that of Canada. The use of the word "sovereign" in this connection "is nothing but the rhetorical bunk of the old-fashioned American political orator," says the Springfield Republican, which adds: "The word was put out of business, so far as its real point was concerned, by the Civil War. Before Lee surrendered there was still room for argument, for the right to secede was undoubtedly a sovereign right. For fifty years the States of this Union have been steadily shrinking in power and importance compared with the Federal government."

The newspaper quoted is right. Our States were sovereign when they voluntarily joined in a Union for mutual protection, but their power gradually waned, and after a larger group of States in control of the Federal government triumphed in war with a smaller group, nothing at all was left of the original sovereignty, although the States continued to make laws for themselves and otherwise act independently within limitations. Lloyd-George is right in holding that a "dominion" such as Canada enjoys a larger degree of indepedence than individual American States, but goes far astray in attributing in these times anything like real sovereignty to our States, misled by our continuing but now meaningless employment of the term.

LYNCHING NORTH AND SOUTH.

Recently a white man was sent to the penitentiary for three years in Virginia on the charge that he took part in the lynching of a negro who confessed to an attack on an aged white woman. On the same day Massachusetts called out troops to save from a mob three negroes guilty of the same crime a Kentucky mob was fired into by order of the authorities and prevented from lynching a negro also charged with the "usual crime." Commenting on these facts under the editorial heading, "Not Sectional: National," the Philadelphia Public Ledger says: "If we keep our balance, we will remember that this thing is not sectional. Massachusetts knows it and Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska have witnessed it. (Pennsylvania also). The South is blackened by the vast majority of American lynchings; but Judge Lynch has held court many, many times in the North, West and Middle West."

In order to be altogether fair, while making its point clearer still, the Public Ledger should have added that "the vast majority of American lynchings" inevitably occur in the South because in that section are congested nine-tenths of the negroes and therefore the "vast majority" of crimes leading to lynchings are committed there.

In its "separate peace" the United States recognizes the existence of the Versailles treaty, although not a party to it, and also recognizes the right of the parties to that treaty to enter into it and carry it into effect. There has been, therefore, no betrayal of our associates in the war. We merely decline to be bound by certain features of the treaty, which were improperly inserted, but do not assume to interfere with other nations who are willing to be bound by them. The United States quarrels with no other nation that likes the Versailles treaty.

Rates of exchange in business transactions between people of different countries are determined by economic conditions. Any attempt to regulate rates of exchange by governmental action would be a species of price-fixing—the fixing of the price of a pound sterling, for example. Experience has shown that price fixing by government is not practicable and results in injustice and injurious reaction. The Harding administration believing in less government in business, will not try to price-fix rates of exchange.

Senator Penrose, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has indicated the intention to ask that the internal revenue bill be taken up before the tariff. In this he will have the hearty approval of a great majority of the people of the country.

2. Is the cuttle-fish they give canary birds really fish?

3. How many poison snakes are there in the United States?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Do frogs have ears?

Not projecting external ears in the common sense. There is an outer auditory membrane, however, the tympanum, elliptical in shape, placed back of each eye. This vibrates to sound waves, the vibrations reaching the inner ear via a tiny bony or cartilaginous rod, the columella placed between the outer and inner parts of the auditory apparatus.

2. Do birds always eat in the day time?

The majority do, but nocturnal species like owls and nighthawks hunt at night by preference. Certain wading birds and ducks feed either by night or by day, being governed by the state of the tide which enables them to find their food, rather than by light or dark.

3. What does soap-root come from?

From the root stock of several varieties of the Yucco of the south west. Indians call it "amole," and before manufactured soap was introduced by traders, Indians used it to make suds for washing. The root stock is rich in saponin and when shredded and rubbed briskly in water, it lathers freely. A commercial toilet soap has been made from Yucca baccata. There are a number of other plants as Bouncing Bet, that have soapy qualities.

Of Auto Accident Different From That Told In Newburgh.

G. F. Young, Jr., who resides a short distance from this city, near Lake Katrine, came to the uptown office of The Freeman Thursday afternoon and stated that he was the owner of the Ford touring car No. 740-148, and desired to contradict the statement made by the Newburgh News, copied in The Freeman Wednesday that he was at fault because of an automobile collision south of Marlborough on Monday evening. Mr. Young stated that a Ford runabout of Walter Chatfield in which Chatfield and a companion were riding came zig zagging down the road until it got opposite his (Young's) touring car when Chatfield gave the wheel of the runabout a quick turn and the runabout shot into his touring car hitting the hub on the front wheel and bending his mudguard. After Chatfield hit the touring car, Young says, the runabout ran across the roadway and struck a Hudson car owned by J. DuBois of Marlborough that was following the Young runabout, doing about $200 damage to the Hudson. Mr. DuBois was 50 feet behing Young's car, the latter states, and saw all of the accident. He also stated that the tracks on the highway which were viewed by a number of people clearly indicated what car was to blame. According to Young's statement Chatfield, who went out through the windshield of his runabout after hitting the Hudson touring car, disappeared right after the accident and could not be found. The Chatfield runabout was very badly wrecked from hitting the Hudson car.

WASHING TUBERCULOSIS AWAY.

Daily Bath Would Prevent It, Says Englishman.

The Englishman's insistence on his morning splash, even if he has to carry his tub about with him, and the American's determination to have a bathroom in his home regardless of cost are justified at last. A daily bath is considered either a luxury or waste of time by enough people and nations to make Sir James Crichton-Brown's statement at a conference of sanitary inspectors in England a contribution to the science of health. "If every one took a daily bath, hot or cold," he said, "tuberculosis would virtually disappear from the world." He says we have a long way to go to attain a proper standard of personal cleanliness. He would legislate the great unwashed out of existence by having a tub in every home, even if the state had to supply it.

There is much in this suggestion, for there are still people, even in America and England, who do not know the value, not to say the joy, of a daily scrub. That the flesh is weakened by bathing is a superstition that persists in too many homes. Physicians could dispel such beliefs if they would, but perhaps they fear to insult their patients even when they know the advice is needed.—New York Tribune.

INSTEP SUPPORT

Another reason why Dr. Kahler shoes give such comfort to the foot is the way the inner-webbing is inserted between the lining. Thus when the shoe is laced, the arch of the shoe is drawn snugly under the foot giving that constant needful support.

Kingston Souvenirs Also Show Other Changes In City.

Souvenirs of Kingston's various celebrations are not met with frequently although all of the celebrations are of comparatively recent date. One reason for the scarcity of souvenirs is the fact that most families preserve them only a short time; another reason is that the greater part of the celebration souvenirs were bought by visitors who are more apt to preserve them than people who live here.

An interesting souvenir which is quite scarce is the book of views of Kingston issued in connection with the Hudson-Fulton celebration in October, 1909. Ulster County Day during that celebration occurred on Tuesday, October 5. A study of the pictures printed in the Hudson-Fulton souvenir booklet shows how many changes have taken place since 1909. At that time there was a high picket fence around the property occupied by the Kingston Club and Kingston Trust Company at the corner of Fair and Main streets. The signs of business houses on all the principal streets now are much changed from the signs at that time. Many firms whose signs are shown in the pictures of that year have either moved or gone out of business. The views of the different streets of the city at that time attract attention principally because of the numerous ruts and mud-holes.

TREE SECRETS.

Peter Gnome was very anxious to visit the trees and Mother Nature said that they would all be highly honored to have him pay them a call.

In an Old Apple Tree."

So it was arranged that he should go to call on them.

Peter Gnome was very fond of the trees. He liked them in the spring when they were bursting into bloom. He liked them in the summer when they were so green and lovely. He liked them in the autumn when they wore such dashing, beautiful costumes, and he loved them in the winter when the snow came and covered them and made them look so pretty.

Of course he liked the evergreens and the trees that stayed the same.

In fact it was the truth that Peter Gnome loved trees. There was something about trees that was very sociable.

He thought trees were friendly and cheerful and that trees gave one such a nice feeling when they were all about.

Nothing made Peter Gnome feel cosier and happier than to perch himself up in an old apple tree.

He loved the trees which could be used as Xmas trees, and he even liked little bits of trees which were planning some day to be great enormous trees.

So Peter Gnome set forth to visit the trees. And they all rustled and whispered among themselves.

"Peter Gnome is coming to visit us. Peter Gnome is coming!"

"Hello, Peter Gnome," said the Red Maple Tree.

"You can recognize me by my new spring frock which I wear to honor Miss Springtime.

"See! I have red buds and flowers and these first leaves of mine are red.

"I wear a green frock later on, but I am fond of red, for as soon as the autumn comes I am the first to lead the autumn fashion of scarlet clothes."

"Well, it is a joy to see the trees coming out," said Peter Gnome, and the trees all swayed in the soft spring breeze and said,

"We bow our thanks to you for that kind speech, Peter Gnome."

"We most certainly do," they repeated as they swayed back and forth again. "We bow our thanks and our pleasure too, that you like us. We want to be liked. Trees are very anxious to be liked."

"Mother Nature says you want to hear about us, too," the Flowering Dogwood said. "We're not very big, but you think our white blossoms are gay and pretty, don't you? In the summer we will wear green berries, and red ones in the fall. But we'd like to send a message to the people by you, Peter Gnome. Do tell them, if you get a chance, that we love to dress gayly and beautifully when the spring comes and we like to be admired. But please ask them not to pull us all to pieces for that hurts us so!"

"I'll take your message," said Peter Gnome.

"We began the spring parade," said the Pussy Willow, "with our soft catkins, followed by our pretty yellowish flowers."

"We're not thought much of," said Poplar Brothers, "but we do the best we can. We're thought rather common, but we will grow where there have been fires, and we will do our best to cover up the ugliness and the shabbiness and the miserable look any part of the country has which has been injured by fire. And we stand very straight, don't we?"

"True," said the Horse Chestnut. "We're dressed in our best now with our great tall clusters of white blossoms.

Why, we're named Horse Chestnuts, I'm sure I don't know, considering we're too bitter a nut in the fall even to be eaten by horses."

"It Is a Joy."

"Mr. Wind isn't going to knock our branches off," said one of the Hickory trees. "We'll see to that. We've strong branches, we have!"

"Everyone knows what we look like," said the White Oak with its pointed leaves. "They know our acorns, too, and they know that in the spring we have such lovely silvery and rose-colored frocks which we change soon into green leaves."

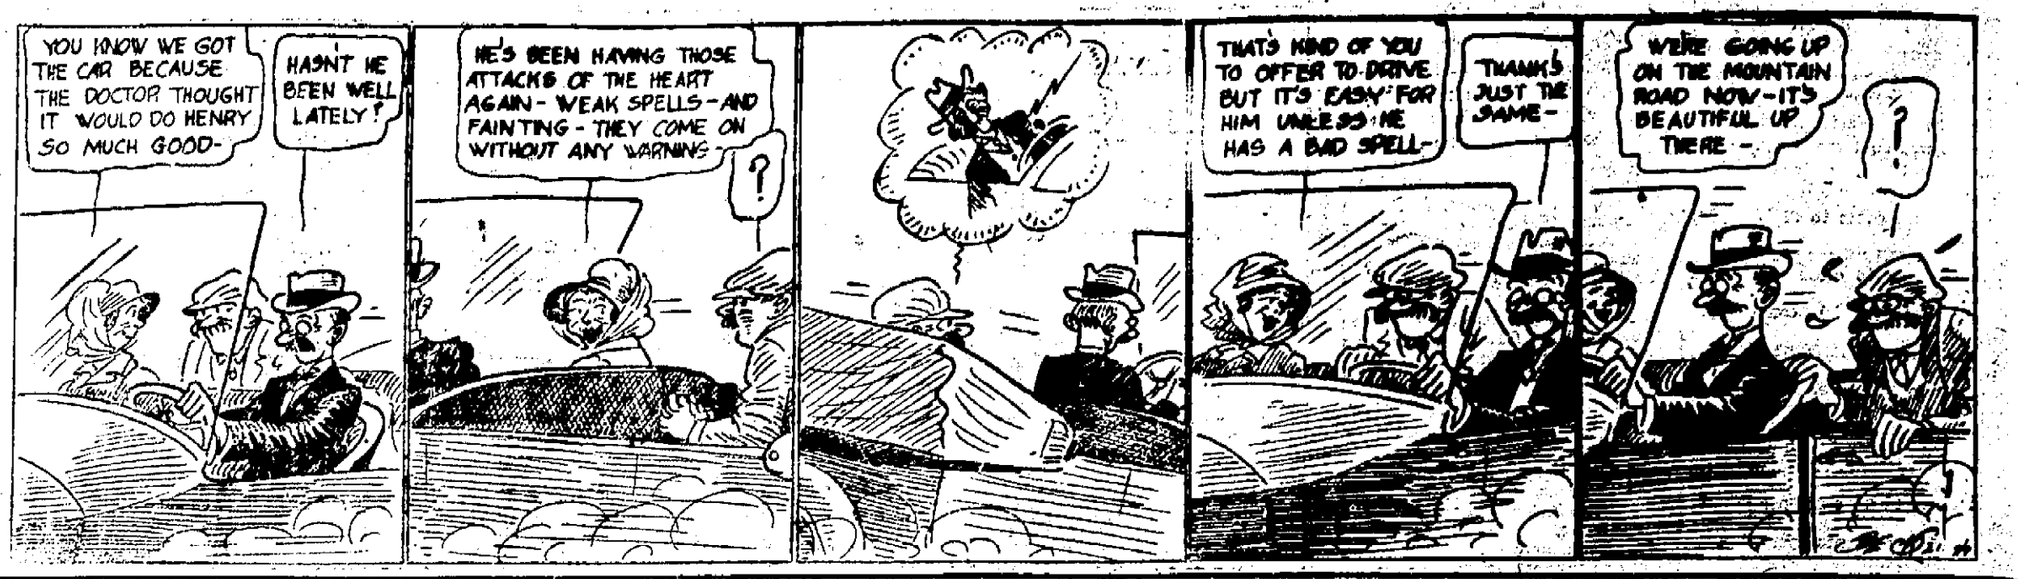

"I'm so glad to see you all appearing again this spring, dressed in your best," said Peter Gnome.

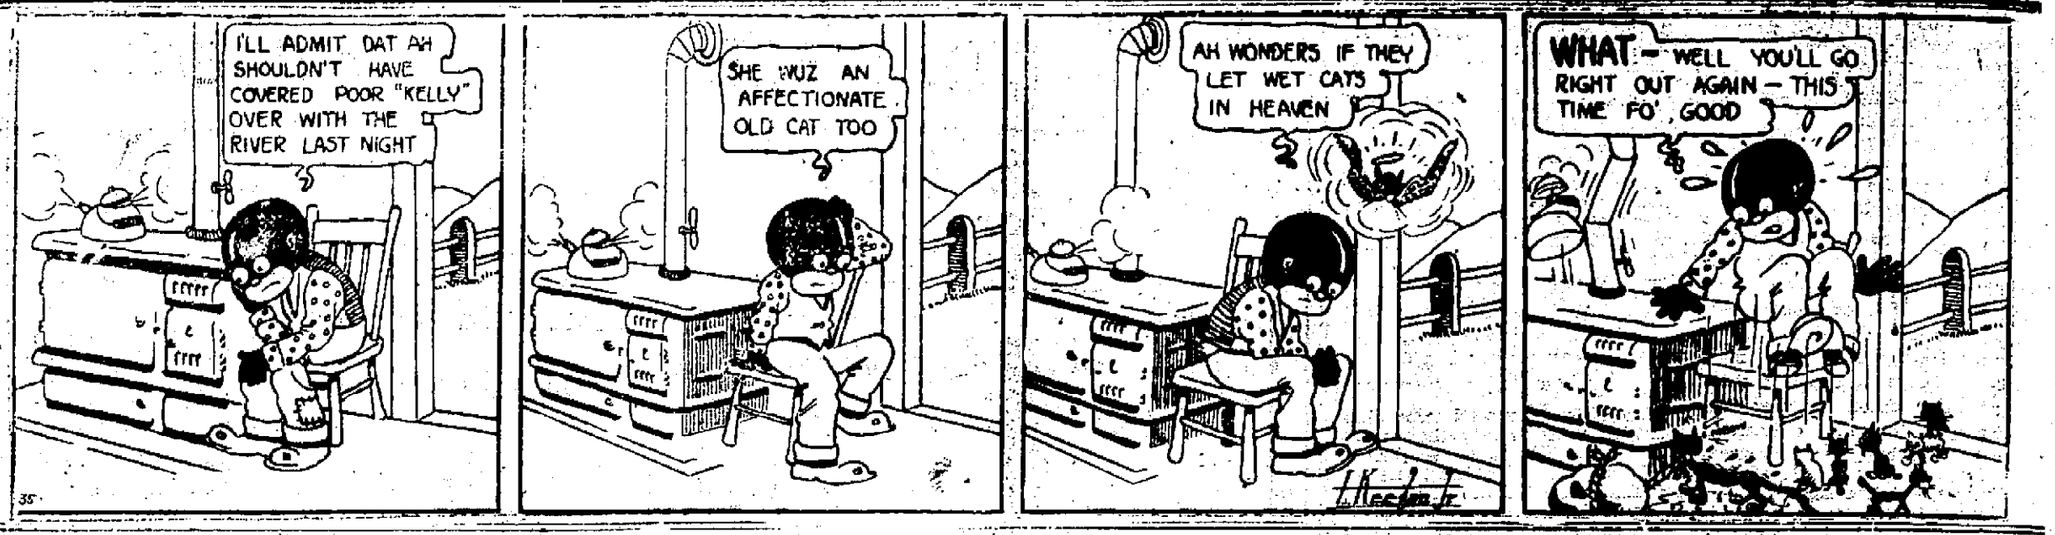

"We'll always appear, never fear," said the trees as they waved him a good-bye with their branches.

Mistake Made by Many.

Too many people take themselves too seriously, and can't understand why their estimates of themselves are not accepted by others. Consequently they "take it out" on others when they might do much better by taking some things out of themselves. There's too much personal "inflation."

SOME SUMMER CANAPES.

During warm weather when soups are not cared for as they are in winter a canape and some sort of fruits cocktail seems to be necessary. The canapes may be made in various ways.

The toast round, square, or in fancy shape is used as a foundation usually, whether the canape is to be served hot or cold. In hot weather the toast keeps from drying at the edges better if brushed with olive oil instead of butter and enough is not used to effect the flavor of the canape. A slice of fried apple or a thick slice of tomato or a slice of cooked egg plant is sometimes used in place of the toast.

Egg Canape.—Take as many hard-cooked eggs as are needed, allowing one to a canape. Butter a round of toast and lay thin slices of the egg-white on it. Remove the skin and bone from two sardines, break them up with a fork and add the yolk of egg put through a ricer, the juice of half a small onion, and a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Spread the mixture on top of the egg rings, add a dash of cayenne and paprika and place an olive stuffed with an almond in the center.

Chicken Canapes.—Chop very fine the breast meat of a cold boiled chicken, add pepper and salt, one boiled egg chopped fine and a small can of pate de fois gras. Mix well and add enough mayonnaise to bind the mixture. Form into little croquettes the size of a large olive, roll in finely chopped nuts and paprika and lay two or three on a square of toast or a lettuce leaf that has been dipped in French dressing.

Herring Roe Canapes.—Drain the the herring roes from the oil in which they are canned, then let them marinate in French dressing for half an hour; drain, add pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of chopped pepper and a teaspoonful of fried bread crumbs. Cut the roes and use a tablespoonful of the mixture on each toast round, placing a teaspoonful of heavy mayonnaise on the top of each, garnishing with a spray of water cress.

Nellie Maxwell

Dunsany a Fast Writer.

Lord Dunsany, who, despite the slump in theaterland, has had a new play produced in London recently, appears to be well nigh as facile a playwright as Lope de Vega, remarks the Manchester Guardian. From the preface to "Plays of Gods and Men" we learn that the longest of these, a three-act tragedy, took him only three days to write; a two-act play took two days; a one-act play one day. The time allowance of 40 an act a day was exceeded only in the case of "The Queen's Enemies," the single act of which took six days, and most readers of the volume will agree that it is the least effective play of the four. Mr. Pond, the lecture agent under whose auspices Lord Dunsany toured the States two years ago, says: "To see Lord Dunsany at work—a thing which he seldom permits—is to see a ceremonial. He uses large, square-cut committee paper, and he writes with a quill pen. On one side he has a great stock of fresh feathers, and when he finishes a page he blots it and throws the blotter away."

Preserving Milk.

Is milk condensed? Milk is condensed by the evaporation of the water it contains, after it has been sterilized. Sugar is added to some brands, and is not added to others, and the unsweetened is known as "evaporated" milk to distinguish it from the sweetened. Copper tanks holding 1,000 gallons or more are used in the sterilization of the milk, and the water is evaporated in huge vacuum pans.

Smoke as a Lightning Rod.

It would seem that a building 9,000 feet above the sea level should be protected by lightning rods, but the astronomical observatory at Mount Etna has not, and does not, need such protection. The observatory is near the summit of the volcano, and the stream of vapor constantly rising from the crater acts as a natural conductor, draining the electricity out of the clouds, so that lightning is seldom seen there.

Reduce Those Dangerous Swollen Veins

Physicians are prescribing and hospitals are using a new and harmless, yet very powerful germicide that not only reduces enlarged or varicose veins and hemorrhoids to normal, but also reduces boils, enlarged glands and sores.

Ask any first-class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and prove to yourself anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if this wonderful discovery does not produce the results anticipated, you can have the price refunded.

It is not wise for anyone to allow swollen veins to keep on enlarging. Often they burst and cause weeks of pain, suffering and loss of employment. Start the Emerald Oil treatment as directions relate and improvement will begin at once. Generous sample on receipt of 10 cents, silver or stamps. International Laboratories, Rochester, N. Y. Your druggist or McBride Drug Stores can supply you.

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

RETURNS FROM WAR COUNTRIES

Prof. Ettore Errera of 197 Washington avenue who has been spending the past two months in Europe where he went to meet his only sister who had come from her home in Alexandria, Egypt, for the summer, has just returned to Kingston. Prof. Errera, with his sister and her husband visited France, Belgium and Holland. The professor gave a very interesting account of what has already been accomplished in France and Belgium in the way of reconstruction work; of the after-the-war spirit and temper of the people; and of the outlook for the futuree

Already Belgium has made great strides in the rebuilding of her homes, her business, her railroads, her public buildings, etc. So naturally she has regained much of her cheerfulness, much of her normal mode of life This has been made possible in large measure, because while the people of Belgium suffered intensely individually under the German occupation, that very German occupation was the reason that so much of the entire country remained intact. Perhaps there is no joy greater than the joy that comes from the deliverance from acute suffering, which is the condition of the Belgium people today, inspiring them doubly since they have not the rebuilding to do that must be done in France.

In France, it was not alone the general devastation in certain sections that impressed the professor, but the marked evidence of German ruthlessness everywhere, as for instance the deliberate felling of fruit trees, orchards, where nothing but destruction for a long future could have been the object. Though the gay, debonair spirit of the French people has apparently been replaced by a seriousness that in many instances amounts to sadness, the reconstruciton work, in spite of its seeming hopelessness in many sections, is going forward splendidly. While the wisdom of rebuilding first is plain enough, the removal of the masses of reminding ghastly war-created debris, when it can be accomplished will add immensely to the encouragement and cheering of the French people, who yet must daily view the destruction wrought by Germany in their home land

While the physical appearance of Paris has not greatly changed, Prof. Errera found the city almost unrecognizable. Where gaiety, pleasure were the life of pre-war Paris, economy, everywhere economy, seems to be the one thought of Paris today; economy in individual spending; economy in every line of production and business; all the way from the most careful small economy of the individual to the largest conservation of industrialism. It seemed hard to realize that midnight, formerly the zenith hour of life in "Gay Paree" is now the hour when all the life of Paris stops entirely.

The progress in the reconstruction of railroads is great and naturally reconstruction along other lines will keep pace with added railroad facilities

Perhaps one reason why the spirit of the French people is still subdued to the point of sadness even where there is most reason for feeling encouraged over what has already been accomplished, is that there is everywhere, yet, an indefinable, but quite natural feeling of apprehension, of dread of France's recent enemy, Germany and what she will do in the future.

Agriculturally, France and Belgium are also again coming into their own, but here, naturally, the progress is very slow.

The professor found Holland untouched by war, remarkably prosperous by that very reason, far more cheerful to visit as a vacationist, but seems very glad to be back in the United States, which though still greatly agitated as the result of the war seems so much more normal to the average individual. He will now resume his teaching of French, Italian and Spanish at his home, on Washington avenue

Pome.

I wanna be a movie queen
And a vamp the handsome vil-i-yun;
To be the darling of the screen
And earn each year a million
I want some Mary Pickford curls,
And big eyes like the Talmage girls.

I wanna be in every scene
And wear a flock of fussy clothes,
And have a plush-lined limousine
And break a heart with every pose—
I wanna go down town of nights
And see my name up in the lights

I'm old enough to know my mind,
I'll be sixteen the third of May.
I'm modest, but I can't be blind
To all the charms that people say
I've got, it's easy to be seen
That I should be a movie queen.

There were two figures in the wheat field One stood stolidly, motionless. The other moved here and there. One was the hired man; the other was a scarecrow. The reason the scarecrow moved so much was that he couldn't stand still in the wind like the hired man.

PRESS FOR BONUS.

Legion Determined To Get It Without Amendment.

The first move is a statewide campaign to pass a constitutional bonus law through the legislature, so that soldiers of the state can get at an early date the money which was voted at the last general election by the people for that purpose, was made Wednesday at a meeting of the state executive committee of the American Legion at Albany. The Rev. Gregory Mabry of the Holy Cross church, State Chaplain of the American Legion and a member of Kingston Post was present.

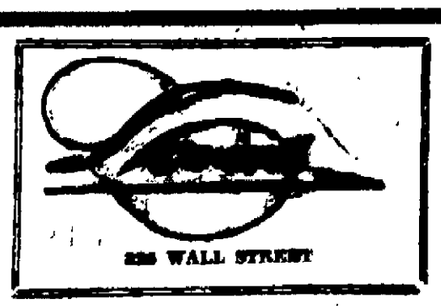

By a resolution adopted by the committee the 1922 legislature will be called upon for an "immediate payment of the state bonus in accordance with the expressed mandate of the people." All details of the law are left to the legislature, but the committee insists that some method be found by which the bonus may be paid.

The committee expressed itself strongly against long procedure incident to amending the Constitution and then passing a law in pursuance to the amendment. This the committee believes would delay the bonus until 1925 and insists that the men need the assistance now. Final details of the campaign to get the bonus will be completed at the next meeting of the committee, which will be a part of the state convention at Jamestown on September 23 and 24

This Nurse Tells Mothers

How to Save Children from Skin Irritations and Soreness

West Carthage, N. Y.—"I am a graduate nurse, and I feel it a duty I owe to mothers whose little ones suffer from chafing, rashes, itching, scalding, or any skin irritation or soreness, to tell them that in all my experience as a nurse I have never found anything equal to Sykes Comfort Powder to heal and soothe the skin. Habitually used after a child's bath, it heals and prevents soreness and rashes."—Mabel E. Miller, R. N., W. Carthage, N. Y.

The reason Sykes Comfort Powder is so successful in such cases is because it contains six healing, antiseptic ingredients not found in ordinary talcums. For twenty years it has been used and endorsed by physicians and mothers, and nurses call it "A Healing Wonder."

KIWANIANS' VACATIONS OVER

Ball Team Plays Poughkeepsie Tuesday—Service Tells of Vocational Teachers' Summer School and Survey Soon To Be Made Here.

With the vacation season over, Thursday's meeting of the Kiwanis Club took on its old time lively character, the membership being out in force and W. W. Fredenburgh found a rejuvenated jack-in-the-box chorus waiting his command to burst into song, the jack-in-the box having reference to the way the chorus pops up out of its seats at certain periods.

Clinton G. Dominick, president of the Newburgh Kiwanis Club, broke something on his automobile while on his way home from Stamford, to the mutual profit of John Mack, who fixed the car, and Kingston Kiwanis, whose guest he was. The Newburgh man accepted an invitation for his club to visit the Kingston organization the latter part of the month, and said that if the Kingston club's ball team made any kind of a showing against the Poughkeepsie Kiwanis team next Tuesday he might bring his team along to play here. Newburgh beat Poughkepesie 7 to 0 recently.

The game with Poughkeepsie is scheduled for four o'clock next Tuesday afternoon at Poughkeepsie, a clambake to follow. As many Kingston Kiwanians as possible will attend, this taking the place of the regular Thursday meeting next week.

Kingston Kiwanis and Kingston Rotary will play a ball game at Forsyth Park Sept. 23 at which a collection will be taken for some charity.

Among those who were present Thursday after a summer's absence was Robert J. Service, vocational instructor at the high school, who told interestingly of what he had seen and heard at the vocational summer school at Cornell University, which he, like others in similar positions, was obliged to attend. Vocational experts were present from colleges and schools all over the United States and from comparison of ideas and exchange of views changes may be made in the programs of many part time schools the coming winter.

Mr. Service explained at some length the basic idea of vocational education, which starts with the premise that the present secondary system of schools aims to fit all students to the academic course of study, with the object of ultimately attending college, whereas, as a matter of fact a very small percentage ever reach college, and the others are dropped by the wayside. Vocational or part time schools are for the purpose of fitting these students to the means of making a living for which they are best equipped by nature and circumstances, utilizing such academic work as may be most suitable and necessary in the other specialized work.

In response to a request from the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club and the Kiwanis Club the state is soon to send here six or eight experts who will conduct a vocational survey of the city, and here is expected to be one nearly correct answer to the question "What does Kingston need most?" These men and women will be here individually or in groups, for about six weeks and in that time are expected to compile statistics showing what courses of vocational education are best adapted the needs of Kingston's industries making a report to the board of education which may act as a guide in shaping the instruction of Kingston's youth in such a direction that eventually there will be little need for boys and girls to go away from home to seek work.

KANTROWITZ ENLARGES.

North Front Street Stores Becoming Hard To Get.

David Kantrowitz the clothier and gent's furnisher at 46 North Front street, has taken over the adjoining store in his building, at 48 North Front street, formerly occupied by the Globe grocery and is connecting it with his clothing store. The new addition will be devoted exclusively to the sale of shoes and hats of the latest styles. Stores on North Front street, from Green to Wall, are at a premium because of the business growth in that section during the past two years, and very high prices are being offered to owners of buildings as an inducement to sell.

Muller To Reopen Studio.

Prof. George H. Muller will reopen his violin studio in the Keeney Building on Wall street on September 26th. A more detailed announcement will appear in the business notices of The Freeman in a day or two.

NEW BOOKS AT CITY LIBRARY

Following are recent additions to the city library:

Adams—Cycle of Adams Letters, 1861-1865. Letters selected for their description of social conditions, discussion of public questions and contributions to the social, military and diplomatic history of the war of secession. The reader gains also a much pleasanter portrait of Henry Adams than from his autobiography.

Benson, E. F.—Our Family Affairs. A charming account of one of the most striking English homes of the last half century.

Bridges, Robert, ed.—Spirit of Man. An anthology in English and French from the philosophers and poets. Made by the poet laureate in 1915.

Bryce, James—Modern Democracies, 2 vol. "No writer so well equipped with the advantages of intellectual capacity, practical experience, and broad opportunity for observation, has ever written on modern democracy."—C. E. Merriam. "We have here the largest clearest and best informed attempt that has yet been made to bring together for judgment and political guidance the diverse experiments among people of various types and under various physical and mental conditions in the art of popular self-government."—J. A. Hobson.

Bullivant, C. H.—Every Boy's Book of Hobbies. Any boy who has a hobby will find something here to interest him.

Camp, Walter—Football Without a Coach. Comes as near taking the place of an expert coach as printed words can.

Clapp, J. M.—Talking Business. Intended to help the business man to a mastery of the forms required in business.

Esenwein, J. B.—Writing the Short Story. For writers and readers of the short story.

Einstein, Albert—Rleativity. Gives an exact insight into the theory to those who are not familiar with the mathematics of theoretical physics.

Hyde, M. K.—Girl's Book of the Red Cross. A well written story of the Red Cross from the birth of the idea at Solferino to the present day.

James, William—Collected Essays and Reviews. All the qualities which endear him to students of philosophy are displayed here—his unfailing felicity of phrase, his wit, his gay humor, his wide and catholic sympathy. He touches no subject which he does not adorn.

Lynd, Robert—Art of Letters. "Mr. Lynd has wide sympathy. He loves books and he enjoys talking about them: indeed he talks about them with so much gusto that he makes the reader share his enjoyment. He has a pretty wit and he delights in displaying it. He is independent and he has the courage of his opinions."—Brander Matthews.

Morganthau, Henry—Ambassador Morganthau's Story. Published in 1918 but of interest now because of the clear and forceful picture of the men who control Turkey and who are conducting the present war against Greece.

O'Brien, Ed.—ed. Best Short Stories of 1920. Collection of stories published in 1920.

AT THE THEATRES.

"Nineteen And Phyllis" At Opera House—Meighan At Keeney's

Charles Ray in "Nineteen and Phyllis," at the Opera House again tonight and Saturday, proved one of Ray's best since Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway." It has more humor than anything he has yet attempted and in order to say that it has to be real funny. A news weekly and also an excellent comedy attraction is also programed.

The good luck star Thomas Meighan has another good luck vehicle in "The Easy Road" showing at Keeney's tonight and Saturday. The picture fairly bristles with action and the story deals with a novelist who makes a wealthy marriage and finding himself on Easy Street, his ambition wanes and he develops into a drone. His wife quits him and he sinks into the depths, but is finally regenerated after a series of interesting events. The comedy feature is "Wedding Blues" a special Christie two reel fun show.

"The Wild Goose," at the Auditorium tonight, is something that grips and holds from end to end, the legend of the "wild goose" that never leaves his mate even unto death is ably and strongly told. The settings and scenes abound in lavish beauty. "The Sky Ranger," is also programmed tonight. "Spine Shivers," plenty of them. Saturday, Conway Tearle in "Society Snobs."

"The Greenwich Village Follies," described as "a revusical comedy of life in New York's Latin Quarter," is announced for the attraction at the Kingston Opera House next Wednesday night.

Ambergris.

For many hundreds of years ambergris has been employed in sacerdotal rites of the church, and with fragrant gums it was formerly burned in the apartments of royality. To some extent it was used as a medicine and as a flavoring for certain dishes. Nowadays ambergris is utilized almost exclusively in the manufacture of perfumes and the preparation of fine scents being first converted into a tincture by dissolution in alcohol.

THE MORE COLD, THE LESS COAL

Editor, The Freeman:

Some information has recently come to us in which the public will be interested.

Several wholesale coal companies are positive in their statement that with an early fall or a severe winter we are certain to have a shortage of anthracite coal or hard coal.

Last spring the public expected a substantial reduction in the price of coal and many refused to order thinking in this way to force down the price but the contract with the miners and the financial position of the railroads seemed to militate against a price reduction

This refusal on the part of many all over the country to order as usual will mean that a large part of the business which in previous years has been distributed throughout the summer will this year all come in the fall and winter months with the result that there will be a grand rush for coal.

Then, too, next April the agreement with both the anthracite and bituminous coal miners expires and the wage question will probably have to be fought out at that time So that from all angles of the question it would seem to be the part of wisdom to arrange for the winter's supply as soon as possible. There is nothing to be gained by waiting longer.

Now the purpose of this letter is not to "throw a scare" or to cause undue anxiety about the supply of coal but simply to urge upon those who can do so, the wisdom of arranging for their coal with as little delay as possible.

For those who buy in small quantities, the Kingston retailers can be depended upon to supply their needs.

Very truly yours,
PALEN & BOUTON COAL CO

Because of his uncle's strange will, that he get a new job every two days, Jim left the newspaper office and went to the corner drug store where Mr. Wilson held sway. Mazie, the owner's daughter, greeted him cordially. "I want a job for two days," he said. "Can your father give me something to do?"

"I'll make him. You know Mr Lawrence, we owe you an awful lot—Ira and I do. Do you know anything about a soda fountain?"

"Absolutely nothing!"

"Then come over, and I'll explain all I can. Pa's talking about going up to Boston and he might be glad to have you here."

"I can't make up prescriptions."

"You won't need to. I'm a licensed pharmacist. All you will have to do is to tend to the sodas and odd sales."

For the next fifteen minutes Jim was taught to serve sodas and phosphates, to wield the ice cream scoop, and learn the difference between nut sundaes and merry widow frappes. When Mr. Wilson came in later, he was impressed by the youth's knowledge and agility, and readily consented to his remaining.

Jim found the work easy, and enjoyed meeting the continual stream of people who came into the store. No one jarred his good nature until late in the afternoon when a couple entered the store. Jim's attention was attracted first by the youth—a tall, slightly stooping young dude, with his white flannels, silk shirt and cigarette held between yellow-stained fingers. He led the girl to one of the ice cream tables, and held out a seat for her. The chairs swung in under the table when not in use, and the girl sat down quickly before her's would shoot under again. Then the youth sat beside her and gave his orders to Jim. "See that you put cream in the soda water," he snapped, "and ice cream that isn't all ice And a decent amount of flavoring The last ice cream soda I got tasted like dishwater."

"You didn't get it here," cried Jim loyally.

"None of your cheek or I'll report you. And don't be all day. I've something else to do."

Turning his haughty back on Jim he began a giggling conversation with the girl, while Jim mixed the sodas and placed them on the counter.

"Your sodas are ready."

"Serve them to us."

"Get them yourself."

The youth turned around quickly. "Come, boy, get a move on."

"Self service. I'm not paid to serve anywhere but from behind the counter."

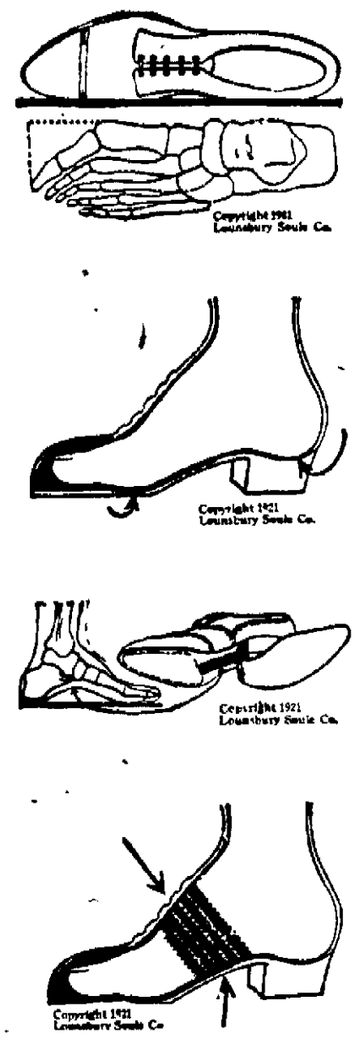

"You good-for-nothing lazy scamp!" the youth stormed, leaping to his feet. Jim grinned at him. The young man took the foaming glasses and returned to the table Placing one soda in front of the girl he pulled out a seat to sit beside her. Blind with rage, he miscalculated The seat swung in, he stooped to sit, and landed on the floor with a thud. The chocolate syrup streamed over his flannel trousers, and a lump of mushy ice cream landed between his eyes.

The girl glanced at her unhappy companion, then at Jim, and couldn't control the scream of laughter that burst forth; while the youth, scrambling to his feet, shot through the door and out, leaving his escort to take care of herself.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Whitely will leave this week for their home in Wilmington, Del. We shall greatly miss them at our church services as they were like the Master who they follow, always found in church on the Sabbath Day.

Labor Day dawned bright and clear.
Filling hearts of High Wooders with cheer.
They surely knew then crowds would come
To see them ere the day was done.
All roads did lead this way.
They always do on Labor Day.
Though not always sunshine, but rain.
If once you come, you will again.

In the morning the people of this place and their friends were all busy getting ready for the expected crowd who came from all points of the compass until a large crowd had gathered. Before the parade came in view our beloved stars and stripes were carried first of all. Then a group of girls dressed in national colors and George and Martha Washington on a float. The Mt. Marion band, and other floats followed. Among them we noticed the "Greeting" float, trimmed in pink and white, upon which were two little girls, also dressed in pink and white, who threw flowers to the people from baskets on their arms. A farmer's wagon with produce recalled to our minds the words of the poet:

"But all to each to each befall.
The farmer, he must feed them all."

A Japanese float was O. K. Another had a happy group of children. A sentinel stood upon another, and some of the Willing Workers showed how they could work at washing, baking, churning, etc. Sambo and Dinah were on hand to dance the Virginia reel. We hope they may come again. Old Rip Van Winkle came down from Sleepy Hollow with his dog. We are glad to know the lady who was looking for High Woods found it in time to join our parade, and hope the lady who was looking for a man will find one some day soon if she did not at the fair. At the fancy work booth the ladies had so many pretty things it was hard to decide which to purchase. Other booths were also busy, while in the hall three long tables were loaded with goodies of which there were plenty for all who came to partake. It is our Old Home Day. Many old schoolmates clasped hands again with others and talked over old times. At counting up time the total receipts were over $900. We thank all who gave to us so liberally. As midnight approached the lights were turned out and once more Labor Day and our labors were ended.

LARGEST ISLAND FROZEN DESERT

Greenland Buried Under Mass of Snow and Ice.

POPULATION IS ONLY 15,000

The One Land Mass Where Conditions of the Ice Age Are Now Dominant—People Almost Entirely Dependent for Food on the Sea and on Supplies Brought From Outside — United States Once Had Claim to Country —Has Phenomena Seen Nowhere Else in World.

"The largest island in the world (if Australia be classed as a continent), the land reaching closest to the North Pole, the country harboring the northernmost civilized community, and the one land mass where conditions of the great ice age are now dominant—such is Greenland," says a bulletin issued by the National Geographic society in connection with a visit recently made by the king of Denmark to his bleak American colony.

"Mercator of map fame has unwittingly confused the mind of the world in regard to Greenland," continues the bulletin. "Because the sphere is flattened out on many maps as though its surface were stretched, Greenland, vast as it is, is made to appear many times larger. It is as though the country were reflected in one of the mirrors set up at country fairs to make the thin appear fat.

"But viewed properly, the great northern island bulks large enough to command respect. If its northernmost point were placed at the Canadian border in North Dakota its southernmost point would reach to the mouth of the Rio Grande, the southern extremity of Texas. Its greatest width is approximately equal to the distance from New York to Chicago.

"But though the island is almost continental in size, having an area of about 800,000 square miles, it has only 15,000 inhabitants, the daily population of a single huge office building in lower New York city. The reason for this sparse population is not alone the far northern position of the country, for the lower half of the island is in approximately the same latitude as the Scandinavian peninsula with its 8,000,000 souls. But while Scandinavia is bathed by the warm gulf stream, and Iceland, too, is benefited by it, Greenland lies far from its influence and is washed only by icy Arctic currents.

"Exposed to the full effects of the frosts of the Arctic, the great island which at one time in geologic history had the climate and verdure of California, has been changed into a frozen desert.

Mighty Rivers With Banks of Ice.

"Only a narrow fringe along a part of the coast is free from the ice cap, and even this ground is frozen in winter and covered with snow. It is along the fjords of these narrow ice-free sections of the coast that the few thousand Eskimos and the handful of Danes that make up the population of Greenland find a precarious livelihood.

"During the short summer the interior of Greenland presents phenomena to be found nowhere else in the world; but the frozen wastes are inaccessible and only a few eyes have beheld the changes that take place there when the sun swings to the north. Great lakes are formed; mighty rivers flow between blue crystal banks, their waters never touching a stone nor a fragment of soil until they finally plunge down some chasm in the ice. Glaciers push out of the countless fjords, some discharging ice into the sea at the rate of 50 to 100 feet a day.

"Mosses and lichens and a few flowers and shrubs spring to sudden life in the summer along the ice-free fringes of the coast, but few vegetables except radishes, turnips and lettuce can be grown. The people of Greenland are almost entirely dependent for food on the sea and on supplies brought from outside.

U. S. Had Claim to Greenland.

"Greenland was discovered and settled by Eric the Red from Iceland nearly 1,000 years ago—the same Eric whose son, Leif Ericsson, soon after discovered America. The settlements throve for 400 years, but mysteriously disappeared before Columbus' discovery. The early settlers were Norwegians. Later Norway was combined for a time with Denmark and the Danes became the heirs to the bleak island. A Danish missionary who searched the southwest shores of Greenland in 1721 was the first to renew Scandinavian settlement of the country. Other settlers followed and Denmark established a paternal government over the Eskimo of the south.

"Northwest Greenland was discovered, explored and occupied as a base for polar expeditions by Americans during the Nineteenth century—notably by Peary and Greely. When the United States purchased the Danish West Indies in 1917, as part of the purchase consideration it relinquished all claim to any part of Greenland. Since then the Danish government has extended its authority to the sparsely settled northwest coast and to all other inhabited sections of the island.

"The towns of Greenland are few and unimportant."

AESTHETIC RODENTS GET A $30,000 HOME

Music, Gymnasium and Modern Social Life Will Make These Rats Gentlemen.

The superrat, like the superman, is not, as Nietzsche would have it, of the warrior type, but is a gentleman or gentlewoman, an aristocrat at heart, although democratic in his ways. He is gentle and sociable, a good fellow, as it were, healthy and active and has an aesthetic side, being fond of good music.

These are some of the conclusions drawn from years of experiments with the ordinary rodent by Dr. Milton H. Greenman, director of the Wistar institute.

To make observations on a more extensive scale and under more favorable conditions than heretofore, particularly in food research, the institute is building a $30,000 home for rats. This building, now in course of construction, will be a one-story wing to the present building and will be provided with every kind of convenience conducive to rat comfort and well being. The results, it is believed, will be of far-reaching benefit to mankind.

Besides an office and laboratory there will be a well-equipped gymnasium for the rats. Ladders for climbing, modified trapeze, running space, treadmill cages and gnawing apparatus will be provided to give the eugenically-raised rodent the proper exercise.

TOURISTS PASS UP SWISS

Money Rates Are Blamed for Lack of Sightseers.

Switzerland has reached the acute stage of economic stringency resulting from a too favorable rate of exchange. The tourist season, upon which it depends to such a great extent, opened with little prospects.

Tourists who usually visit Switzerland during the summer, are going to French and Italian resorts. The Swiss, themselves, to a considerable extent, are abandoning their own country to spend their outings in France, where Swiss money counts for twice its value at home, or in Italy, where it counts five times the normal value.

The crisis shows not only in the absence of tourist trade, but in industrial stagnation, a good many workers being already out of employment.

A few weeks ago it looked as if the delegations to the second assembly of the League of Nations, September 5, would find difficulty in getting lodgings here. It now appears that the hotels will welcome the league delegations unless there is an unexpectedly radical change in the travel situation.

BOY LEADS BAND OF THIEVES

Philadelphia Youth Could Start Motor Cars, No Matter How Well Locked.

Declared by the police of Philadelphia to be the leader of an organized band of youthful motor thieves who have stolen, in six months, 200 cars, valued at more than $5,00,000, Charles J. Ricketts, sixteen years old, was arrested. Confession has been made, the police say, to the theft of five of the cars.

The arrest of Ricketts was accomplished by detectives as the youth was alleged to be going after his "latest machine." He was held in $2,000 bail. According to the detectives, Ricketts is a fine mechanic. Although just past his sixteenth birthday, they say he can start any car, no matter how well locked, by using a small piece of copper wire.

"We have been after this lad for three months," said Detective Falvey. "He is certainly in a class by himself and a born leader. No wonder his gang, five of whom are already in jail, awaiting sentence, were afraid of him. Several were older than he, but he seemed to be able to boss them like a manager."

NEW PLAN OF GRAFTING

Downing Has Red Astrakan Apples Growing on a Pear Tree.

Residents of Norway, Me., and vicinity are making pilgrimages to the orchard of Solon Downing to prove the truth of his story about town that he has been picking red Astrakan apples from his Bartlett pear tree. Downing offers substantial proof.

Six years ago this man grafted six scions into his Bartlett pear tree. It appears that one of these must have been an Astrakan apple scion instead of a pear. But the scions grew, blossomed and fruited this year and the apples are genuine red Astrakan pear-shaped, pear tasting or otherwise indicative of their new parentage.

The feat of grafting an apple scion on a pear tree is said to be new to horticulturists.

Russia's "Wild East"

A Citizen of Siberia.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

A sled drawn over the deep snow by terrified horses, a driver wildly beating them, and a pack of ferocious wolves breaking in pursuit from a dark pine forest—this is a picture that has given many a person a faulty idea of the Siberia of today.

An American woman who had laughed at an Englishman when he complained that during his ten days in New York city he had not seen a single Indian asked upon her arrival in Vladivostok if there was any danger from wolves in the city. As a matter of fact, one may spend a considerable time in Siberia and cover large areas without seeing a wolf, or a pine tree, and what little snow he will see will probably not be more than a few inches deep, though there are sections where it is quite deep. And one may meet thousands of people without seeing either exile or criminal.

One is not likely to be disillusioned about the climate. The American soldier said, "Siberia has two seasons —July and winter." This is nearly true, for there is practically no spring; the foliage does not appear until June. July is as warm as the winter is cold. The brief fall is beautiful indeed, and there is something very thrilling about the intense cold of the winter, when the temperature goes to 60 and 70 degrees below zero in some sections.

Everybody dresses and prepares for the cold, and on the whole it is possible to be more comfortable in the steady winter of Siberia than in the changeable American winter.

Beautiful Wild Flowers.

Siberia's wild flowers—a feature which does not fit into the picture of a frozen waste—are worthy a volume in themselves. There is a wild rose that blooms hugely on big, sturdy bushes. Then there is the mauve and gold of the "Mary and John," that is loved most by the Siberians. This lovely flower is named after the Virgin Mary and the loved disciple.

Siberia is, above all, an oriental country. Out there the traveler sees every phantasmagoria associated with the East. Oriental sunsets, equal to any and inferior to none, thrill the senses with splendors of color ranging from volcanoes of rubies to the myriad mysteries of the kaleidoscope. Then one sees all the peoples of the Orient—Chinese, Japanese, Tartars, Manchus, Koreans—men and women of every color and condition.

For the most part the Russians have Russianized the country. Even so, one could easily believe the Tower of Babel incident to have occurred in Siberia, for one hears so many languages and sees so many different national customs. Chinese "sampans" and Japanese "dambes" ride the roadstead of Vladivostok along with Russian craft and American motorboats, and on the highways and caravan routes camels and oxen are passed by modern automobiles, mostly of American make.

Native Life Fascinating.

One gets wonderfully attached to Siberian life. There is something charming and fascinating about it. The natives, in spite of the scourges of typhus and cholera, in spite of the hunger and cold which they have experienced so frequently during the last six years, are devoted to their homeland; yet apparently they are indifferent to the rich opportunities of their country.

Siberia is a land of rich agricultural potentialities, in spite of the shortness of the summer season, and even American tables have been served with Siberian cheese and butter. But the most alluring opportunities of the country are presented in its mineral wealth—gold and silver and precious stones.

There is so much in Siberia that reminds an American of our "Wild West" of earlier days, whether it be lawlessness, freedom, opportunity, a place to live life over again, great distances, vastness and gloriousness of scenery, or barrenness such as is seen on the Gobi desert, where the camels graze.

And there are many features that may be described in typical American superlatives. Vladivostok has the finest harbor in the world; the railroad connecting Vladivostok with Petrograd is the longest in the world—thus the Siberians rave, and not altogether madly. But they cannot rave about their roads. The Russian word, "doroga," meaning "road," literally means "bad road," and it would be redundancy to speak of a bad "doroga." It merely means a place where you may get through.

Cities Handsome but Dirty.

The cities of the Russian "Wild East" are not very populous, but each one boasts of sufficient beautiful churches, government and private edifices to give it a noble aspect. First is Vladivostok, a combination of Gotham and Chicago. At the other end of the country is Omsk, the capital. In between and top and bottom are Tomsk, Ekaterinburg, Cheliabinsk, Chita, Xabarosk, Irkutsk, Harbin and Nikolsk. One of the most objectionable features about these beautiful cities is their filth and the attendant odors.

Tomsk has an unusually beautiful cathedral and a great university that has produced more than one famous name, Metchnikoff, the great bacteriologist, being one of them.

Vladivostok, the largest and most interesting city of eastern Siberia, owes much to Russia's loss of Port Arthur, for that misfortune increased the tsar's interest in the more northerly seaport until he had made it worthy of its name, "Ruler of the East." The one disadvantage of Vladivostok is that its harbor is frozen during several months of the year. In spite of this drawback, Vladivostok probably possesses the second finest harbor in the world, and it is claimed that from a military standpoint the city was second only to the Dardanelles.

The city spreads out at the foot of many hills and rises into a beautiful and sudden spectacle as one's steamer makes a turn in the approach from the sea. A cathedral with many golden domes occupies a place of vantage, and everywhere rise huge stone and brick barracks, mostly white, with an occasional pile in red brick for contrast.

All around the city are barracks, barracks everywhere. It is said that there are sufficient barracks in and around Vladivostok to house an army of half a million men. These barracks are substantially built and provide protection against the heat of July as well as the cold of winter.

The outstanding characteristics of the Siberian Russian are his physical strength and stamina and his gentleness of nature. Most people will be surprised at the second part of that statement, on account of what has been published about the Bolshevist atrocities. It is true that the peasant went from the extreme of an absolute monarchy to the most fantastic socialism the world has known. Nevertheless he is gentle and forgiving by nature.

Of course, Siberia did not taste the full bitterness of Red Bolshevism. The extreme elements were present, but they never had full swing. Red Bolshevism in Siberia never was more than "pink," and that pink is becoming paler every day.

MYSTERY OF LOST ATLANTIS

Believed by Many to Be Merely Legend, but Idea Can Not Be Entirely Uprooted.

Will the mystery of "lost Atlantis" ever be solved to general satisfaction? The story has been told for centuries, and is still accepted as true by numbers of people on both sides of the Atlantic.

The original idea was that an island of immense size and great beauty existed beyond Africa, with many large cities, and nations having strange laws and customs. Some writers have even gone so far as to describe the kind of clothing the people wore and the money they used.

Then the story goes that the inhabitants of this great island of Atlantis grew bold and warlike, and that they invaded Europe and Africa. But fate was unkind to them—because of their wickedness, it is said; terrible earthquakes and floods occurred, and in a single day and night Atlantis was swallowed up and sank into the depths of the Atlantic ocean.

In the attempt to find some ground for the persistent belief, one famous scientist fell back upon the time, thousands of years ago, when great tracts of the earth were covered with a sheet of ice of vast thickness.

In this ice were imprisoned such enormous quantities of water that the level of the oceans sank quite low, with the result that large areas of land were left uncovered. One of these uncovered portions, he suggested, was the island or continent of Atlantis, which, on the melting of the ice, was covered again by water to a great depth.

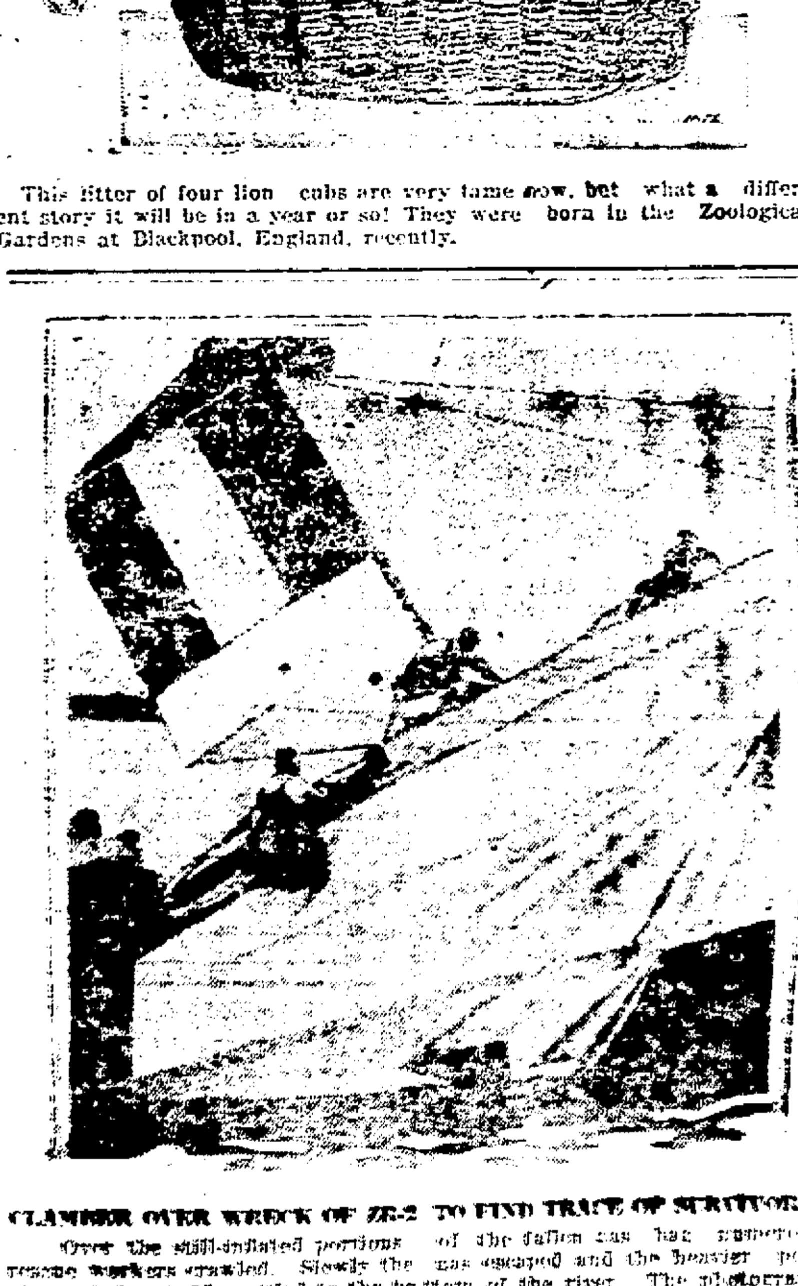

The western mountains of Europe and the eastern mountains of North America are supposed to be fragments of the high mountain ranges of this mysterious "lost Atlantis."

Ingenious Photography.

Experiments with "positive photography" have produced some very interesting results. The plates may be separately wrapped in black paper at night, or in a dark room, and all the remaining work can be done in the light. A plate is taken from its wrapper in the light and placed in the slide holder, and an exposure, a long one, is made. After exposure the plate is taken out in the light again, and placed in the developing bath, and the picture is developed, and may be fixed, in the light. The result is a positive. Fine pictures are thus obtained.

This litter of four lion cubs are very tame now, but what a different story it will be in a year or so! They were born in the Zoological Gardens at Blackpool, England, recently.

CLAMBER OVER WRECK OF ZR-2 TO FIND TRACE OF SURVIVORS.

Over the still-inflated portions of the fallen gas bag numerous rescue workers crawled. Slowly the gas escaped and the heavier portions of the airship settled to the bottom of the river. The photograph shows some of the first frantic efforts to get from beneath the clumsy bulk any who might be alive.

Potter-Santee.

The staid, old Presbyterian Church in Circleville took on new life Thursday, when the first wedding ceremony in more than a half century took place in the marriage at 3 o'clock that afternoon of Miss Helen Milla Santee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Santee and Allen David Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Potter of Ellenville.

Banked with oak boughs and asters of pink, orchid and white, the stately and sober house of worship seemed to smile a blessing on the couple, united by the Rev. N. S. Becker, of Stony Point on the Hudson, in the presence of 150 relatives and friends. The bride was given away by her father. Miss Santee was attractive in a gown of white taffeta with shadow lace, corneted veil and a shower bouquet of gardenias. Attending her as maid of honor was her cousin, Miss Vera E. Crans, of Middletown, Syracuse University, Class of '19. Miss Crans wore silver blue taffeta and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids were Miss May Potter, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Ruth Wallace, daughter of Supervisor and Mrs William R. Wallace; Miss Mildred Santee, cousin of the bride, and Miss Marion Ives, Syracuse University, '19 of Stamford, Conn. The bridesmaids wore pink and orchid organdie and carried asters. The flower girl was Doris Wallace. The bridegroom was attended by Ward Wilklow, of Ellenville, Cornell Law School, '21. Ushers were Edward Davenport, of Ellenville, Cornell, '20; George Freer, of Ellenville, Cornell '23; Chauncey Potter, graduate of Syracuse University, and secretary of the New York University and Jay Vanderlyn of Poughkeepsie.

As the couple entered the church Miss Dorothy Becker, daughter of the officiating minister, played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. At the ceremony's close she played Mendelssohn's wedding march. Miss Grace Potter [illegible] of Perth Amboy, N. J., who has studied at the Boice studio and is a member of the Rubinstein Club, New York city, was soloist, and sang "O, Perfect Love." The ceremony was followed by a reception at the house of the bride's parents, at which 150 guests attended, from East Orange, N. J.; Syracuse, New York city, Poughkeepsie, Philadelphia, Pa., Passaic, N. J., and Stamford, Conn. Decorations were oak boughs and asters. A bridal luncheon with 14 guests followed. Following the ceremonies Mr. and Mrs. Potter left for an extended tour through the New England states. They will make their home in Ellenville, where Mr. Potter is in the insurance business and where he is building a house. The bride is a graduate of Syracuse University, '21, and a member of Phi Beta Kappa fraternity.

N. Y. DRY RAID BECOMES REAL

Inhabitants Of "Wettest Spot" Treated To Spectacle Of Enforcement Agents Who Are On The Job—With Guns Where Necessary.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 9.—Americas metropolis, called the wettest spot in the country, today was swarming with determined prohibition agents, some in dress suits and others in rags but all carrying shooting irons, who are participating in the biggest dry-up drive New York has ever seen.

As a result of seizures of illicit liquor, some $2,000,000 worth of booze taken in the last week was in the hands of federal agents. Ten persons were shot, two killed and about 100 jailed in garnering this harvest.

Today's activities included a raid by agents in dress suits on a Broadway roof garden, the storming on a Greek steamer in which two lives were lost, and the confiscation of three carloads of contraband liquor in Brooklyn.

"Dry-up the corner where you are" was believed to be the battle cry of the warriors upon bootleggers.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 9—The stock market started irregular this morning with small price changes. Right after the opening, however, most of the leading issues developed weakness and receded about one point. U. S. Steel started ⅛ higher at 76⅝ and then yielded to 76¼ while Baldwin Locomotive after opening at 82 fell to 81. Studebaker showed a gain of ¼ at 74⅝ and then dropped to 74¼. Northern Pacific showed an opening loss of 1¼ points at 74½ and U. S. Rubber was ½ lower at 47¾. Mexican Petroleum started ½ higher at 113 and then broke to 111¾.

After the recession in the first 15 minutes the market again became steady, prices being well maintained close to the high level of the week. Baldwin Locomotive moved up to 81¾. U. S. Steel rose to 76¼ and there was persistent buying of Vanadium Steel which advanced 1⅜ to 33¾.

The market trading in the afternoon was market by the establishment of new bullish conditions, price movements being directed by factors wholly apart from the covering of shorts which had been so effective in carrying along upward movements in the preceding part of the week.

The market closed strong; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds strong.

MAN THE MORE EMOTIONAL

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt Contradicts Opinion Long Held as to Qualities of Sexes.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Equal Suffrage association, has a theory that men are more emotional than women, in illustration of which she tells the following story, according to the New York Sun:

"I once visited a small village in New England which was bordered by a small river, so that farmers coming into the village from either way had to ford the stream.

"Year after year the town meeting debated laying a bridge over the stream, but it was always decided that local finances would not stand the additional strain of the necessary tax, and that the farmers would just have to wait until the stream got low in the spring and then ford, as usual.

"One year, shortly after this annual decision, an elderly village pauper died. He was a veteran of the Civil war, but the village folk had never paid any attention to him in his life. They had never tried to find out what they could do to help him to a better way of life nor contributed in any way to his well-being. However, as soon as he died, the town began to have a tender conscience about the manner of his burial. They were unwilling that the man they had neglected all his life should have a pauper burial. So they tried to hire a hearse from a nearby town to give him what they call a christian burial. Not being able to hire a hearse, they decided they ought to have a hearse of their own, and consequently they bought one costing several hundred dollars.

"Then they said: 'What good is a hearse without horses?' And so they bought horses. And then they said, 'Now, that we've a hearse and horses, we must have a place to keep them,' and so built a stable and carriage house for the horses and the hearse. Altogether the expenditure was very much greater than would have been necessary for the bridge, and all because they had emotionally decided that they must give what they regarded as a fine burial for a man whom they had never helped to happiness while he was living."

If there are any men present when Mrs. Catt relates this instance of the emotional qualities of men she always smiles agreeably and adds:

"Although I am quite convinced that men as a whole are more emotional than women, of course, there are exceptions."

Bottled Fireflies Lure Fish.

Anyone would have supposed that fish were immune to demoralization of modern scientific progress, but even fishing is coming under the sway of advanced and entirely original ideas of bait and fish hooks.

Izaak Walton would have shuddered at the thought of using the storage battery in the tail of a firefly to lure wily bass at night, yet the contrivance has been used to good advantage by William P. Osborne of the New York State College of Forestry.

By imprisoning fireflies in a small glass vial and rigging the container with an ingenious arrangement of hooks, black bass have been found to succumb to the scintillations of the insects and to swallow with great rapidity hook, line and sinker.

An ordinary tubular pill bottle is fitted with a harness to which are fastened three pronged hooks, two on the sides and one on the end. The bottle is then equipped with a swivel similar to that used on a wooden minnow. Four or five good-sized fireflies are placed in the bottle and the bottle sealed.—Milwaukee Journal.

Vienna Still a Music Center.

About the only thing that may be said to flourish in the Austrian capital these days is music. Despite the hard times and the almost worthlessness of Austrian money, the concerts are largely patronized. The capacity of the concert halls is taxed to the utmost. Music-making starts early in the day and lasts till night, one hall frequently having as many as five concerts in one day. And most of the halls are sold out, although where the money comes from is somewhat of a mystery.

This artistic life speaks well for Vienna as a music center, as that city is attracting not only native talent, but musical artists from many outside countries. Even Sweden is sending musicians, and a seventeen-year-old Chilean boy pianist was a recent artist who took that city by storm.

Progress in New Guinea.

It is 13 years ago that Zahn of the Evangelical Lutheran synod went to New Guinea and began his work among the natives, who were then largely heathen. There were many cannibals in the territory. A letter recently received from Moraba, shows wonderful spiritual progress. A large proportion of the islanders have renounced heathenism and given up their instruments of witchcraft. It is estimated that 8,000 of them have been received into the Christian church.

Aerial Mail Service.

Ecuador and Nicaragua are establishing aerial mail service, and in China 40 planes are operating 800 miles from Shanghai to Peking, according to the Nation's Business. Passengers and parcels are carried as well as postal matter and on letters thus delivered in Old Cathay are stamps bearing by way of filling contrast a pictured airplane beside a picture of the Great Wall.

Bride Murdered.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

[illegible] Highlands, N. J., Sept. 9.—Mrs. Isabella Dobson, a bride of [illegible] months, was found brutally murdered today in her home here. Police are searching for her husband, George Dobson.

CHIC DRESS FOR SPORT WEAR

This smart sport dress of beige color canton crepe with long straight lines is relieved from plainness by pleated side panels. The belt, neck and sleeves are finished with faggoting.

BEST WAY TO CLEAN RUGS

Mild Soap With Tepid Water Should Be Used When Floor Coverings Are Washed.

Rugs should be kept clean with a good carpet sweeper or electric vacuum cleaner, as the hard grits of sand will, if not removed, injure the nap. Do not sweep Wilton or Axminster rugs hard at first as the tufts are liable to loosen before they are pressed down by usage.

All Wilton and Axminster rugs are "sheared" when finished, consequently light fluff or loose wool will sweep out for some time. This is a feature of the fabric and not a defect.

Do not pull out any knots or tufts. Cut them off even with the surface of the rugs. The tufts in any domestic rug can be deliberately pulled out. This is due to the nature of the weave.

Protect your rugs from bright or strong sunlight, as all domestic rugs will fade some.

When washing is necessary, use mild soap, with tepid, not hot water, else the alkali of stronger cleansers will eat into the surface and destroy the color. Never flood the surface with water. It is best to wash about a yard at a time, rinse with clear water and let dry thoroughly.

Given a coat of varnish, linoleum survives a much longer period of wear. Before varnishing, make sure that the surface is free from grit or grease. Let varnish dry over night before walking on the floor.

Waxed linoleum is easier to clean with a dust mop. Dust and grease will not stick to it.—Detroit News.

TAFFETA HAS CHARM FOR ALL

Fabric Lends Itself to Many Uses for the Wearing Apparel of Milady.

One favorite way of developing a frock fashioned of taffeta material is making a quaint basque bodice and a tiered or scalloped skirt.

Fringes and uncut edgings have disappeared from view, and in their places—even at the beginning of summer—came ruchings of taffeta and queer little wheels and ornaments of lace edging, the latter frequently tinted to match the gown, and the ornamentation has gained in favor.

Speaking of elaboration, it may be interesting to notice that blossoms and leaves are made of chiffon velvet, taffeta and even organdie.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Serge and foulard are much combined.

Taffeta frocks have snugly fitting bodices.

Entire lace dresses in brown, gray and henna are very good.

The surplice bodice worn with a fichu is quaint and very smart.

Hand-painted flowers bloom on some of the newest sport suits. Their delicate tints suggest nothing so much as Dresden.

Things that stand out in fashions for children are the straight line, the very short skirt and the sleeve which almost aren't.

For millinery, jet and steel ornamental novelties are being shown. Large medallions of solid sheets of jet are fringed with strings of jet or steel beads.

Among the Parisian novelties are round small pocketbooks which are not unlike a flower. The handles are clever imitations of stems and the purse itself is the flower. Blue corn flowers are used for the exteriors of some of them, with mauve silk as the lining. They are effective with summer frocks.

Braided.

Burnt orange velvet baby ribbon woven or braided is forming the dresses of a number of velvet hats.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

Objections to probate of wills, administrations and to the judicial settlements of accounts of executors or administrators of estates are becoming features in Surrogate Kaufman's court since business was resumed after the August vacation. The latest is the filing of objections to the judicial settlement of the accounts of Alice M. Hartshorn administratrix of the goods and chattels that were of the estate of Marenius Pressler deceased late of the town of Lloyd, and a supplemental citation has been issued returnable October 5 when the matter will come up. It is expected it will take three days to take the testimony and hear the objections. Solomon G. Carpenter is the attorney for the administratrix, and the lawyers who represent those filing objections are D. W. Ostrander, Andrew Wright Lent, John Mack, William A. Mulvey and John A. Tynan, the three latter from Poughkeepsie.

The last will and testament of John H. Bush deceased, late of the town of Marbletown has been admitted to probate in surrogate's court. The value of the estate is $2,500 real and $200 personal. The devisee of the real and personal estate is Sarah Jane Bush, the widow who is named as executrix. C. C. Hardenburgh represented the petitioner.

More Light on the Adam Family.

Referring to the recent statement of a scientist that the Garden of Eden was located in Ohio, we are reminded of the Scotch laird who told a famous singer that Gaelic was the language of Adam. The singer afterward spoke laughingly of the claim to another Scotchman, who remarked in all seriousness, "The laird was quite richt. Dinna ye ken that the Garden of Eden was in Scotland? Dinna ye ken that Adam's name was McPherson?"—Boston Transcript.

"BAT" MASTERSON'S REVENGE ON THE CHEYENNES

One December day in the early seventies a young buffalo hunter down in the Texas Panhandle was busy skinning a buffalo when five Cheyennes of Chief Bear Shield's band rode up, saluted him with a grave "How!" and sat on their ponies idly watching his work. Although the hunter's Sharps rifle was lying some distance away, he was not worried, for the Cheyennes were supposed to be peaceful at that time.

Presently one of the red men dismounted and picked up the Sharps as though to examine it and, as he did so, another reached across and whipped the pistol from the holster in the hunter's belt. Instantly the first Indian struck the white man a murderous blow across the forehead with the rifle and in broken but emphatic English told him to "git." The hunter was outnumbered five to one; he "got."

The victim of the Cheyennes was "Bat" Masterson. William Barclay Masterson was his name, but his success as a buffalo hunter had won him the title of "Bat," as a worthy successor to Baptiste Brown, "Old Bat," a mighty slayer of game in the old days. Masterson reached his camp in safety.

That night he rode stealthily into Bear Shield's village and "cut out" 40 of the old chief's ponies. As he worked he came upon another rider engaged in the same occupation. It proved to be Billy Tighlman, a fellow buffalo hunter who later became a famous deputy United States marshal.

When in 1874 a war party swept down upon the Adobe Walls, the buffalo hunters' headquarters, some of Bear Shield's warriors rode with it, and one of the defenders of the little stockade was "Bat" Masterson. Then and there he obtained revenge for the blow which the Cheyenne had struck him.

After the Adobe Walls fight, Masterson enlisted as a scout for General Miles and served with him until the southern plains tribes were subdued. A few years later he was elected sheriff of Ford county, Kansas, Dodge city, the county seat, was one of the toughest cowboy towns in the West, but when Masterson resigned in 1881 it was one of the most peaceful. By his courage and his skill he had established a record second only to Wild Bill Hickok as a tamer of "bad men."

Then he left the West never to return, and today "Bat" Masterson is a high salaried writer on a New York newspaper.

GALLT WANTS TO PLAY COLONIALS

"Pop" Gallt's Catskill ball team which won the third and deciding game for the championship of Greene county Monday afternoon is now out for bigger game. Gallt claims his team is the best in the Hudson valley and issues a defi to the Colonials to play at Saugerties any open Sunday. Saturday at Kingston and odd games on toss of coin.

The Catskill Enterprise thinks "Pop" has a tolerably good team as is shown by the following:

The Colonials of Kingston have to reckon with Catskill before they can claim any championship stuff. Are they afraid? Looks like it. The present Catskill line up looks better than Kingston. Smedes is a shade better than Robbins, Coyle outclasses Shirick at first, Glaser is far better than Conners in hitting and field. Gallt or Kelly at short are as good as Deegan, and Desmond at third is fast as they come and hitting 462, Short left field is better than Schwab and hitting hard, Jimmie Morgan in center field covers more ground than Fitzgerald and is as good a hitter. That leaves right field to be taken care of by Kelley, a better hitter than Moore. Now for pitchers—R. Gallt has shown wonderful class, and Harry Dickhout is showing his old time form.

Koff To Join Giants.

Walter Koff, third baseman of the Stamford team, has been signed by the New York Giants and will report to that club in a few days. Koff is a brother of Larry Koff of the Cincinnati Reds and has been playing an excellent game for the mountain aggregation, hitting and fielding in splendid style. Koff is a Dartmouth man and one of four college players recently acquired by the Giants.

COLONIALS PLAY COPS SATURDAY

Coming to Kingston with the reputation of having defeated several of the fastest semi-pro clubs in the Metropolitan district, the New York police department team will subject the Colonials to a severe test Saturday afternoon. A team that can defeat the Farmers, as the police team did last Sunday, must be a crack organization. Several of the other semi-pro clubs in New York and vicinity have fallen before the onslaughts of the police.

It is probable that Williams will be in the box for the local club, although Captain Schirick has not as yet announced his choice.
